Dear Joshua,

The editor of The Age has written to me to say that he is very interested indeed in your column and has contacted the Washington Post with a view to arranging publication in Australia.

Very sincerely,

Dear Gus--

I am very grateful to you for your good offices on this. Thank you very much.

If this does work out, could you ask the Age to send me a subscription, and bill me, for the one issue a week in which the column appears. It will be fun to see the column in that context, and also to rummage through incidental news of Melbourne (with many reminiscences for me); but I don't want to sink the trans-Pacific steamers with too much paper.

Should you ever be exercised enough to want to press some urgent topic, please never hesitate to let me know about it.

All goes well here; the best to you & Lynn.
